

Jesus said:

“I am the vine; you are the branches. Whoever abides in me and I in him, he it is that bears much fruit, for apart from me you can do nothing.” John 15:5

Member Care

We lead a partnership of 40 mission organizations that pool resources to provide exceptional support to Canadian missionaries and their families serving internationally and at home.

It is said, "Never let a good crisis go to waste." We have been living through a global crisis, and while I would not call it "good," I will say that it has created good opportunities. In a year where the pandemic impacted every aspect of our society, we saw most of our ministries bearing fruit.

The early part of the year was tumultuous, but we adapted and were experiencing new opportunities to serve Canadian leaders and make disciples in our nation by summertime. Moving most of our training events online made them more accessible to people all across the country, resulting in broader participation in all of our provinces and smaller communities. While we could not host large gatherings, our staff found new ways of connecting with people for more intentional coaching, mentoring, and discipleship. Instead of retreating, our teams broke new ground and responded to the needs we observed in churches, the workplace, and our ministry partners. One example is how our MORE Network adjusted to meet the growing needs of missionaries, and their families separated or displaced by the travel restrictions. Thousands of missionaries were walloped when they could not travel home, to their fields, or connect with their families. Our member care team provided much-needed virtual debriefing, coaching, counseling, and other relational services for Canadian missionaries from our forty partnering agencies.

The pandemic threatened to shut down many of our corporate chaplains. Still, business owners and CEOs quickly identified the value of chaplains in the workplace. They continued to serve in all of our client companies, and in some situations, our services expanded significantly.

As we look back at 2020, we see fruit. The Lord blessed us and provided for all of our financial needs. He blessed us with creativity and innovation that lead to new opportunities to serve our nation. The Lord multiplied our efforts and brought forth a harvest from our labour. We are grateful for His provision and your participation. Thank you for standing with us in prayer and for your financial support. The fruit we experienced in 2020 is a direct result of your partnership and a testimony of God's faithfulness.

Thank you.
